BIG ELEVENS SUFFER.

Football material in some of the Eastrn colleges is lacking. Yale, Harvard games to be played can, it is thought, hardly be up to the standard of previous years. Yale will lose Glass, Goss, Holt and Chadwick, a quartet of great players seldom seen on one team. Harvard will also suffer from the lack of first-class timber for its team, and the Crimson admirers have a forlorn outlook.

Pennsylvania will have an almost new team, for the wretched exhibition put up by last year's team will not be tolerated. It would not be surprising to see Princeton carry off the honors this year. The rules favor the Tigers

The foregoing were the words of Sir Thomas Lipton as he sat on the upper deck of the Erin on Friday last, the day after the Reliance had beaten the Shamrock III. for the third time in the nternational yacht races off the Jersey coast. Over and over again, as he looked toward the beautiful challenger riding gently on the waves at her moor-ings, he repeated the phrase:

A reporter for the Evening World interveiewed Shamrock III. to-day. She was lying in Erie Basin. She recognized him as an old friend who had been with her ever since she arrived here in quest of the cup. Salt tears dropped from her bowsprit as sne spoke feedingly of her awful disappointment, and for the first time she told of the real cause that made her appear to such a disadvantage in the races.

"When I slid down the ways into the water," said Shamrock III, "the greatest yachting experts in all England said that I was the finest and fastest boat that had ever been built. As I rode out into the Clyde they likened me to the swan. Sir Thomas, Col. Neill and Mr. Fife stood on my forward deck and all three declared that if I did not bring back America's Cup no other boat could ever be puilt that could achieve that ambition.

"Then for weeks and weeks they puttered over me. Every bolt, every timber, every fastening and every stay was examined and tested wis the utmost care. Time and again I have heard Sir Thomas tell Mr. Fife that no expense should be spared to make the perfect. I have heard him give orders to Mr. Ratsey that the finest sails that have ever been turned out in all the world should be the suit for me.

Jack Munroe may fight Jim Jeffries for his title in 'Frisco instead of Los Angeles. The miner's manager has an offer from a 'Frisco club which is better than that offered by the Los Angeles organization before which Jeffries has practically agreed to fight.

An answer from Jeffries on this proposition is expected to-day.
